The Walcom® Zerostat Ionizing Gun is a state-of-the-art tool designed to neutralize static electricity, ensuring optimal surface preparation for painting and coating applications. By effectively eliminating static charges, it prevents dust and debris from adhering to surfaces, resulting in superior finishes.

COLOUR MATCHING WITH KATIE

Her role at IPS

Meet Katie – a true powerhouse at IPS and an absolute asset to our team! Not only is she a key player in our telephone sales department, but she's also a colour matching expert with an incredible eye for detail. Her ability to deliver spot-on matches every time is second to none, earning the trust and praise of customers across the board.

Katie handles all enquiries – big or small – with confidence, professionalism, and a genuinely friendly attitude. Her product knowledge is outstanding, and her commitment to customer satisfaction goes above and beyond. She's not just part of the team – she's a driving force behind our success.

1) What type of samples do you receive to colour match?

I've colour matched all sorts, from an alloy wheel to a terracotta roof tile, a t-shirt, nail varnish, a cushion, a pair of trainers, vinyl stickers.. even chipped paint off an old toolbox, the list is endless!

2) How easy is it to colour match the perfect shade?

Colour matching takes time – getting the right listing, the right variant, and the perfect finish. With so many subtle shades, it can be a detailed and sometimes time-consuming process, especially when you're dealing with pearls or metallics. These types of colours are often trickier to match than solid tones, but that's exactly what makes it more rewarding. It's challenging – and I love a challenge!

3) Talk us through the step by step process?

We always start by making sure the panel is clean – and if needed, polished to bring it up to its best condition. From there, we dive into the thousands of colour chips we have in branch, working through them until we're in the right ballpark. Once we've narrowed it down, we use a colour lamp to illuminate both the sample and the chips, helping to highlight the pearl or metallic effect and ensuring both the base tone and sparkle are accurately matched. When we're confident in the match, the formula is passed over to the paint room for mixing.

Our go-to resource is the Valspar/Octoral colour map books, which consistently help us achieve accurate and reliable matches. We also have a wide selection of chips for other paint schemes in-house, giving us even more flexibility. And for those rare occasions when a colour can't be matched by eye, we've got spectrometers on hand to scan the colour digitally and get it spot on.

4) What can customers do to increase the chances of getting a good match?

The best way our customers can ensure an accurate match is by bringing in a good, undamaged sample, which is free of scratches, cracks & scrapes.

5) Have you any advice for the readers?

If there's one piece of advice I can give, it's this: trust us. We're fully committed to getting the colour match exactly right – every single time. With years of experience, the right tools, and a keen eye for detail, we take pride in achieving results that are accurate and consistent.
